- youth and community outreach and Two-Eyed Seeing science promotion

In November 2005, personnel associated with the Integrative Science research and programs at Cape Breton University participated in an open house hosted by the university.

More than 100 people of all ages visited with us in the Integrative Science Research Commons. Displays had been set up and hands-on activities were also available. The making of puppets from materials gathered in a local forest proved to be one of the most popular activities.
